The Long Frame Farm House is located on Williams Road near Twiggstown in Allegany County.

The Long Farm House is a two story, three bay wide irregular rectangular frame structure that has been covered with weatherboarding. The building is constructed in a series of blocks. The first block is square, measuring 16'x16'; a second rectangular block abuts the square section on its northwest while a third rectangular block abuts the second section. The entire building rests on a low stone foundation. The roof is hipped with a wide soffit and is covered with asphalt roofing material. Windows in the structure are pegged, double hung, wooden sash frames with a combination of six over one and six over six lights. Two main entrances are located on the southwest facade. They feature horizontally paneled doors with replaced hardware. A wrap around porch extends from the southwest to the northeast facade. It is supported by plain posts and scrolled brackets. Two original brick chimneys are located in the interior of the building.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The Long Frame House is believed to have been built circa 1870 as a dwelling for a simple farmstead. The farm property adjoins the Jewell Stone House (AL-III-V-036) property on the northwest side and is only a few hundred yards southeast of that farm house. Although a title search was not completed, the Long House property was in all probability deeded from Argyle Twigg circa 1870. Twigg owned the present Jewell property at this time and believed to have deeded a part of this tract.¹

During the post Civil War period; up through the turn of the century, agriculture continued to play an important role in the economy of Allegany County. "According to the 1878-79 county directory, there were 133 farmers in the Flintstone area, a very distinctive rural community."² The main agricultural commodities at this time were wheat, oats, potatoes and corn and most farming was done in the valleys and the low hills.

The Long Farm house remains unaltered and is an architectural reminder of a way of life once found in Allegany County.
